NEW FACES

TACKLING THE WELFARE BACKLOG - The town's new welfare director, George W. Shipley, and Miss Barbara Baker, newly employed as a social worker, put their heads together at Town Hall this week and prepared to help take some of the pressure off Miss Irene McCarthy, social worker, who has been carrying the load at the welfare office since the resignation of the previous director more than a year ago. (Cole)

TRYING HIS DESK for comfort is the newly elected principal for Shawsheen School, Edward R. Regan of Dracut. Looking on is Asst. Supt. Vaughn Clapp. Regan, 36, accepted the appointment to the post this week. Because of his experience as both a teacher and administrator, Regan's starting pay will be $12,240. The principal has been working as an education specialist with the U.S. Army Security Agency Training Corps.

News Capsules

Army Capt. John C. Doherty, son of Mr. and Mrs. John P. S. Doherty of 29 Juniper Rd., is home on leave after a year in Vietnam as an intelligence officer. The 25-year-old soldier will return to Vietnam in August to become an intelligence advisor to a South Vietnamese army unit.

Sun Ray Bakery of Methuen has asked Andover's Selectmen to help it locate 144,000 square feet of property in this town that is suitable and properly zoned for its facilities. The board has referred the request to the Industrial Development Commission.

Sun Ray says its attempts to expand at its present location have been stalled for some years, chiefly because of the objection of abutters to a necessary zoning change.

The company has sent a similar request to North Andover selectmen.

The Selectmen approved Monday two appointments made by Manager Richard Bowen: Frederick S. Allis Jr., an instructor at Phillips Academy, was named to the board of trustees of Memorial Hall Library and Thomas S. Marjerson of Burnham Rd. was appointed to the welfare board.

Watters Group Reports

"Y" Center Recommended

Reporting to the Board of Selectmen that it sees a definite need for additional recreation facilities in Andover, a nine-member citizen's committee recommended this week that municipal officials invite the Greater Lawrence YMCA to establish a branch facility here.

In a six-page report, the committee said that it believes the Selectmen should take the initiative to launch municipal construction of a multi-purpose recreation building if the "Y" refuses the invitation or fails to raise the necessary private funds within two to three years.

The recommendations of the Andover Recreational Center Study Committee were prepared in response to a request from the Board, following the February suggestion of Selectman Robert A. Watters that such a group be named to look into the need for additional facilities to provide year-round recreational and cultural activities for the residents of Andover. Watters was among those appointed to the committee by Town Manager Richard Bowen and he served as chairman. Working with him were Theodore Boudreau, Michael E. Brennan, Edward A. Gordon, Arthur Jowett Jr., Frank P. Markey, Mrs. Edward C. Reynolds, Donald D. Sagaser and James D. Wilson.

The committee not only visited existing private and public recreation facilities in the town (including those on school property), but they also looked into the sort of financial and management problems that might be created for the town government if a public rather than a private facility were developed.

The Watters group came to three major conclusions:

- That there is a very definite present need for additional recreational facilities.

- That a single center, containing multiple facilities to serve all the community, could provide the most immediate benefit.

- And that such a facility could be built and operated most efficiently as a branch of the YMCA.

The committee listed also three supplemental recommendations:

- That the town go ahead with plans for a swimming pool on the campus of the new senior high school. Referring to a letter from the School Committee suggesting that the Watters committee consider "community use of a proposed swimming pool and auditorium at the high school," the report said it feels the town can use two pools. "This is especially true," said the report, "when we realize that, of necessity, a school facility would be available to the general public on a very limited basis."

- That the Selectmen and School Committee do "whatever they can" to see that properly completed tennis courts are made a part of the outdoor facilities at the new high school and that they be "readily available" to towns-

Migrant Program Hits Snags

A year ago the Commonwealth Service Corps reported that its summer program for migrant farm workers was meeting with greater success and hitting fewer snags in Andover than anywhere else in the Corps district covered by the office at Peabody House on the Phillips Academy campus.

Then, Corpsmen and volunteers were meeting on a regular basis with some 90 Puerto Ricans on eight Andover farms, helping them with their English and providing them with health education and citizenship information.

This year, however the Corps is restricted to working with only a fraction of the total number of Puerto Rican farm hands employed here.

Why? The reasons are complex, but at the root of it is the dollar.

As of now, the Service Corps is instructing the fewer than 20 workers who are employed on three of Andover's contract farms. It is cut off from the more than 30 migrants employed on four larger contract farms because of an agreement between the Commonwealth Service Corps at its headquarters level and the migration division of the Puerto Rican Department of Labor which operate a New England office in Boston.

The agreement was made because the Commonwealth of Puerto Rican has given its regional director funds for an improved and expanded program of language instruction for migrants working under the terms of contracts arranged with U. S. farmers through the Puerto Rican government.

But the classes for Andover are just being launched this week, and will not cover the sort of health instruction and citizenship training the Service Corps regards as an essential part of any program for migrants.

Bancroft Review Is Tonight

The School Committee will meet in special session tonight with the Bancroft School architect and the building committee to discuss plans for the elementary school which are now being readied in their final form. The meeting is set for 7:30 p.m. and will be held in the superintendent's offices at Central School.

Supt. Edward I. Erickson said Tuesday that he could not predict whether the plans would be approved tonight for presentation to the School Building Assistance Commission. Erickson said he could not "conceive of major changes" being proposed, but added that some minor changes were almost certain to be requested by the school administration at the working session.

Asked if he anticipated committee approval of the plans Tuesday subject to agreed-upon changes Erickson would say only that such approval was "conceivable" if it turned out that only a limited number of small changes are necessary. Preliminary plans for the school were approved some time ago, but final plans must be approved before they can go to the SBAC for that state agency's OK. This is a step that must be taken in advance of the Aug. 28 Town Meeting.

Tuesday's meeting will be the second summer session for the School Committee which had planned to "vacation" between June 20 and Aug. 1.

TM Warrant Opens July 24

The warrant for the Aug. 28 Special Town Meeting will close July 28. It will be opened July 24.

Of prime importance will be consideration of the Bancroft School construction proposal which will include a request for an estimated $1,750,000. Bids are to be taken prior to the meeting so that a firm figure can be presented.

The Selectmen have in mind a few other articles, one of which will probably recommend purchase of an additional school site in West Andover.

Converse Receives Award

The employees and management of Converse Rubber Co., including those of its Tyer division in Andover, have been honored by Sears, Roebuck & Co. for "outstanding performance in manufacturing superior quality products for Sears during the past year."

Gordon J. Burkhardt of Chicago, Sears' national buyer of men's, boy's and youth's rubber and canvas footwear, presented a Sears "Symbol of Excellence" award to Converse management and plant personnel during a brief ceremony held here at a special luncheon at the Rolling Green Inn.

Albert H. Wechsler, Converse

president, and Stephen A. Stone, general manager of Converse, accepted the award on behalf of the company's entire management and plant staff.

Besides a number of Sears and Converse executives and staff personnel, others invited to attend the singular occasion which honored a Massachusetts manufacturer for the excellence of its merchandise were: U.S. Congressman Torbert H. MacDonald and Malden and Andover civic leaders.

According to Burkhardt, Converse was selected for the Sears "Symbol of Excellence" award by an investigating committee representing the company's retail stores, catalog plants, national service department, quality control section, and merchandise development and testing laboratory. The committee took two months to screen nominations from Sears 50 national buying departments.

Andover may have to go through the formality of again approving an appropriation of $125,000 as its half of the funding for the second phase of Rogers Brook reconstruction.

Because the town's vote of funds for the project preceded the effective date of state enabling legislation, a wrangle over the matching funds has developed.

Bids for the project are already in and work should be underway, but the state is withholding its share of the construction price until a way around or through the legal technicality can be found. The division of accounts raised the question.

Miss Joan R. Lynch of 37 Gray Rd., president of the Andover Education Assn., was among the 12,000 representatives to the 105th annual convention of the National Education Assn. which concluded its business in Minneapolis, Minn., on July 7.

Dr. J.W. DeConstant, 6 Cambridge Hill Rd., has been cited for special achievement in the operation and application of blood analyzing medical electronic equipment.

The citation was made following a course of training in the latest techniques of blood parameter analysis at Instrumentation Laboratory Inc., Watertown.

A new medical treatment to stop internal bleeding, often the cause of death following serious injury, has been successfully employed to save the lives of wounded GIs in Vietnam.

The new technique, as reported in Medical World News Magazine, was developed by scientists using research animals at Washington, D.C.'s Walter Reed Institute of Research. It consists of an aerosol spray which almost immediately stops bleeding of an internal organ. The spray substance, N-butyl cyanoacrylate, is now being used as an emergency measure in Vietnam when surgical methods cannot control hemorrhaging.

Pupil "Tax" Aids Indians

Sixth grade pupils at Sanborn School have heard from Save the Children Federation Inc. that $12,500 they donated this spring has been applied to the organization's program for American Indian Self-Help.

Principal Joseph M. Normandy reports that the sixth graders, pupils in the class of Mrs. Mary LaMedica, collected the money contributed as "taxes" for operation of a student government organized in connection with a Social Studies project.

Once the money was accumulated, the student government decided that a way should be found to spend it.

Commenting on their action, Principal Normandy states: "The decision to invest the money in a human being was, I believe, the most generous I have ever seen. A true people to people program."

AFS Hosts Touring Students

Forty-one people from 27 countries are sealing their impression of life in the United States with a two-day stay in Andover just prior to congregating in New York City with more than 3000 other homeward bound American Field Service students.

The teenagers arrived here by bus early last evening and dispersed as guests of families signed on as hosts. These students spend the academic year in Texas, Arkansas and Tennessee where they lived with Americans and attended high school, just as other AFS students have lived in Andover in recent years.

The end-of-year Bus Trip is designed to introduce students to communities and areas of the United States other than those where they have lived for the bulk of their stay. As a result, an estimated 100,000 Americans have an opportunity to meet boys and girls from all over the world during the two or three day stops. An average of six stops is made by each bus.

The American Field Service is a privately sponsored, non-profit, non-sectarian organization for the promotion of understanding among people. It pursues this objective through an International Scholarship Program whereby carefully selected US and overseas students, 16 to 18 years of age, are given personal and educational involvement in the community life of another country, through placement in selected homes and schools for a school year or a summer. Approximately 4,300 AFS scholarships are awarded annually.

Since the inception of the program in 1947, more than 25,000 students from 76 countries have come to the US for a school year and over 13,000 US students have lived in 47 countries. AFS has 38 overseas offices and 2,800 volunteer chapters throughout the United States.

The AFS chapter committee handling arrangements for this year's bus stop in Andover is headed by Mr. and Mrs. Richard Marciano.

Hosting the visiting students are the following families.

Mr. and Mrs. William Beaulieu, 272 High Plain Rd.; Mr. and Mrs. John Berger, 6 Glen Cove Rd.; Mr. and Mrs. Wolf Berthold, 179 Shawshen Rd.; Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Bono, 1 Sandy Brook Cir.; Mrs. Florence Brimblecom, 41 Lovejoy Rd.; Mr. and Mrs. James Burke, 138 Jenkins Rd.; Mr. and Mrs. John Burns, 56 Wildwood Rd.; Mr. and Mrs. Robert Campbell, 5 Thresher Dr.; Mr. and Mrs. Claus Dengler, 5 Lincoln Cir.; Mr. and Mrs. George Dufton, 7

Editorial Comment

What Price Planning?

Warning that unless it is alert, Andover could find itself bisected by two highways as overpopulated with a "hodge-podge" of industry as the famed Route 128, Lt. Gov. Francis Sargent told the Chamber of Commerce at its recent annual meeting that "planning is the name of the game" that can prevent destruction of the natural beauty of the Merrimack Valley.

It was a strange message for Andover, a community that has scrupulously avoided emitting anything that could be mistaken as a mass appeal to industry. Our zoning is sufficiently restrictive and our approach so conservative that industry has at times, in fact, regarded the atmosphere in Andover as downright unfriendly.

Why then did Sargent speak as he did to his Chamber audience? Was it because he knew the message would make its way along Routes 495 and 93 to communities where planning and zoning have been given less attention. Or was it because there was more to his message than reached the casual ear? It has been suggested, by one who follows planning developments closely, that the Lieutenant Governor was planting a subliminal seed with the hope that it would sprout later on as support for proposed changes in state laws that govern such municipal planning combines as the Central Merrimack Valley Regional District Planning Commission, to which Andover belongs.

When you consider that the CMVRDPC is already on record in opposition to much that is in the proposed amendment to the general laws, Sargent's remarks in Andover take on added meaning.

When he advised for example, that the one way to preserve the beauty and perpetuate the heritage of this area is through the use of planning — "cooperative, intelligent, enlightened planning that cuts across parochial interest and artificial boundaries set up by individual communities" — he must certainly have been plumping for the proposal that the scope of regional planning activities be enlarged and encompass responsibility for economic development. What he neglected to mention was that the legislation drafted proposes achieving such cooperative, intelligent, enlightened planning by forcing communities to join a planning district and yield to the authority of the State Department of Commerce and Development on a great many points.

While we can agree with Lt. Gov. Sargent that it is important to see that the countryside abutting Routes 495 and 93 be developed judiciously, we hesitate to embrace the concept of regional planning that would seem to prompt his warning.

It is true that a great many volunteer efforts at planning for mutual good become wasted efforts because of parochial conflict. Andover's frustrating experience with four-community discussions of a regional sewage facility is a case in point.

But forced creation of massive planning districts, operating in the shadow of the State House, would pose a threat to Home Rule, particularly for a town like Andover whose voice could be swallowed up in a district dominated by politically powerful cities.

Certainly the Lieutenant Governor is right when he says that municipalities must learn to work together. That is obvious so long as one community can zone for a tannery right next to the plush residential district of its neighbors, or permit developers to lay waste the greenlands along a major highway while planners across the border fight for balanced development.

It may be true also that it is impossible to get the sort of cooperation necessary between local governments without some form of coercion. But the dose prescribed in the legislation pending seems too strong.

Hopefully the leadership of communities like Andover will involve themselves in proposing modifications that encourage cooperative planning, but within a legal framework that will prevent the arbitrary substitution of state or regional goals for those of the localities directly involved.

Open Mindedness

Without waiting to gather a shred of supporting evidence, a number of vocal citizens appear convinced already that the architect for the Bancroft School has created a design that is too fanciful to be either functional or practical.

Architect Warner's plans are being criticized by some (and regarded) with suspicion rather than enthusiasm because his previous work has caught the eye of juries making architectural awards.

The judgments are premature. Unless, of course, Andover is so wedded to convention and tradition that she is not interested in a look at anything that provides a challenge to both.

The mass energies of the architect, the building committee, the manager's office and the school administration are being directed toward the preparation of the most complete school building proposal ever to be presented to Andover voters in a single package. If their efforts produce the results conceived, Town Meeting members will be superbly equipped on August 28 to decide whether or not the building proposed meets the specifications drafted by our educators and whether or not it can be built for a price Andover can afford to pay.

Meanwhile, what is the harm in keeping an open mind?

Congratulations

TOWNSMAN Publisher Irving E. Rogers Sr. is to be congratulated for demonstrating his faith in the future of the daily community press in America with a major expansion and modernization of the facilities of the Lawrence Eagle-Tribune, for which he is both publisher and editor.

The Greater Lawrence daily broke ground in North Andover Friday for a new building that will permit the company to produce the largest paper in New England — and perhaps the largest in the U.S. — to be printed by photo offset.

In a time when an alarming number of newspapers are disappearing from the stands, it is good to know that steps are being taken to preserve free press competition in this area.

Storm Safety Tips

Hurricane Procedures Suggested

The Massachusetts Civil Defense Agency has issued a list of precautionary and safety measures to be taken during the hurricane season which, in New England, extends normally from August through October.

With the yachting season during this period, MCDA Director Allan R. Zenowitz also urged boat owners to insure that they are familiar with all the rules of water safety effecting adequate mooring or beaching of craft during a hurricane.

The following are safety precautions and safety measures to be followed by the general public when warnings of an approaching hurricane are received:

Safety Precautions

1. Keep your radio or television on and listen for the latest Weather Bureau warnings and advisories.
2. If power fails use your car radio or a portable battery set.
3. Get away from low-lying beaches or other locations which may be swept by high tides or storm waves. If passage to high ground is over a road likely to be under water, leave early! Don't run the risk of being marooned. The same applies to dwellings in the vicinity of streams which may overflow.
4. If your house is out of danger from high tides or streams and is well built, then it is probably the safest place to weather the storm.
5. Be alert for high water in any areas where streams or rivers may flood after heavy rains. Hurricanes are almost always accompanied by torrential rains.
6. Board up, put on storm shutters, tape or otherwise protect windows. Danger to small windows is chiefly from flying debris while larger windows may be broken by wind pressure if unprotected.
7. Get in extra food, especially items which can be eaten without cooking or with very little preparation. Remember that electric power may be off and you may be without refrigeration.
8. If emergency cooking facilities are necessary, be sure that they are in working order.

Safety Measures

After passage of the hurricane, the following safety measures will prove valuable:

1. Seek medical aid at Red Cross disaster stations or hospitals for persons injured during the storm.
2. Don't touch loose or dangling wires. Report such damage to the light and power company, or to the nearest police officer.
3. Report broken sewer or water mains to the water department.
4. Guard against spoiled food in mechanical refrigerators, if power has been off any length of time.
5. Unless you are qualified to render valuable emergency assistance, stay away from disaster areas where you may hamper first aid or rescue work.
6. Drive automobiles cautiously. Debris-filled streets are dangerous, so keep your eyes on the road. Along the coast, soil may

Chiropodist

When we think of a chiropodist today, we visualize a practitioner who specializes in treating such conditions as corns, bunions, and other ailments of the feet. Actually, the term is a hybrid of 2 Greek words — cheir meaning "hand" and poda meaning "foot." The suffix "ist" means "one who practices."

It is not definitely established whether the term originally referred to a person who treated diseases of both the hands as well as the feet—or whether it meant one who used his hands to treat diseases of the feet.

Memorial Hall Library

The Sox, Greek Handwork, New Prints Exhibited

An exhibit of baseball pictures of the Boston Red Sox is being continued in the Children's Room of Memorial Hall Library during July. A new display for the topage bracket in the Children's Room is called "If You Haven't Read It, IT'S A NEW BOOK." This is a circulating collection of old favorites for the Junior High age, selected by children's librarian Mrs. Ross Eldridge.

In the Main Reading Room, Miss Miriam Putnam's recent trip to Europe is the basis for the display of Greek handwork which she brought back. The exhibit also features new books on Greece, the islands, and Byzantine art.

Other attractions in the Main Reading Room are: vacation reading suggestions by Mrs. John Wilson, head of circulation; poetry anthologies prepared by Mrs. Miriam Chittim's ninth grade English class at Andover Junior High; summer reading for young adults, in the young adult section.

New Prints

Now on exhibit in the Main Reading Room are the 1967 additions to the framed print collection. Come in and look them over to select one you may want to take home when they start to circulate on July 24. Framed prints may be borrowed from the library for two months at a rental charge of 25 cents.

Attends Meet

Associate Director, A. J. Anderson, attended the American Library Association's national conference in San Francisco. The theme of this year's convention was "Crisis in Manpower - Myth and Reality."

Anderson served as a discussion leader on the special ALA presidential program dealing with the theme topic, Library Manpower. At two two-hour discussion meetings he moderated general membership meetings on "Selection and Education of Library Personnel." Conferees considered such questions as: Should library education be the same for all types of libraries and all kinds of professional positions and functions? Is the aim of library education at undergraduate and graduate levels to prepare library chiefs or librarians?

Should the educational emphasis be on a core of professional education or on a specialization within the profession?

It is acknowledged in library circles that one of the major problems in the field of library education is the lack of agreement on aims, purposes, and objectives amongst the educators.

The consensus of those in attendance at the convention was that there is a shortage of librarians in the United States but that it is not as acute as experts would have us believe. Edwin Castagna, past president of the ALA, estimates the shortage at 100,000. Librarians feel that the number could be greatly reduced if a clearer definition between professional and non-professional tasks could be drawn and adhered to. Perhaps what is needed, librarians argue, are more people with specific talents to handle specific tasks which do not require the professional degree in library science. Nothing was resolved at the meetings, but it was clear that librarians and their professional organizations will be clamoring for more assistance in coming to terms with this problem. It is anticipated that the professional library journals will devote much space to this shortage and the use of personnel.

General Maxwell Taylor, amidst a demonstration outside the Hotel Hilton staged by some 200 West coast "hippies", addressed the conferees on the situation in the middle east. He iterated the government's stand and invited questions. Clifton Fadiman was another distinguished speaker on another occasion. The new president of the American Library Association is Foster E. Mohrhardt, Director of the National Agricultural Library.

Miss Phyllis Maggeroli, assistant to the president at ALA headquarters in Chicago, was in charge of the special presidential programs at the conference.

Vacation Loans

Extended summer loans are now being made as a convenience to vacationing Andoverians. Under this plan any book that is more than a year old can be taken out for an extended period. The current period lasts until Sept. 15.

All books not on a required reading list which are more than a year old may be taken out for the extended period. Inquire about a vacation loan at the desk at the time of charging out books.

Summer Reading

Enrollments for the summer reading program are now being taken in the children's room and at the Ballardvale branch. If your boy or girl has completed the first grade, or any elementary school grade, he should ask to join in the fun now. Lots of good reading of the children's favorite suggestions for other children is being featured this summer. As books are read the youngsters report on them to the librarians. Summer reading and reporting will last until the first of September, but get started now to get the most fun from the program!

BU Heading Program For Retarded

Boston University plays a more critical role today than it ever has before in the education of New England's exceptional children.

The stage was set recently when the U.S. Office of Education selected the University to develop a center for research and evaluation of instructional materials used in training such youngsters.

Under a $706,000 grant, a new England Instructional Materials Center - similar to 14 throughout the nation - will be established at the University. It will be administered by the school of education within the department of special education.

Purpose of the center will be to provide teachers with updated instructional material and information to help educate these handicapped children. These would be available also to administrators and other professional workers in the field.

Plans call for associate centers in all New England states. The three-year project will be directed by Dr. Donald Maletta and Dr. Harold Ruvlin of the school's special education department.

people when they are not being used by the schools.

And that serious consideration be given to the need for a skating facility, either indoor or outdoor, for all the people of Andover.

Checking into existing facilities, committee members talked to Donald Dunn, director of athletics for the public schools and director also of the Andover Youth Center; Leslie Bartow, municipal recreation director; and members of the School Committee, with whom they discussed the aims and objectives of the public school physical education department.

A fourth source of information was Edward B. Bruce, general secretary of the Greater Lawrence YMCA.

To support its contention that there is a need for a new recreation facility in Andover, the committee draws attention in its report to existing facilities and their limitations.

Pointing out that the Andover Youth Center dates to about 1906, the committee notes in its report that the center operates a program of 63 activities in quarters that are too small to permit segregation by age group and too hot for recreation comfort in summer.

Mentioning also the lodge at Andover Recreation Park, the com-

MIGRANT

Local "contract" farmers are, however, presenting a united front and have told the Service Corps that they and other Massachusetts vegetable growers have agreed to stand together in refusing to permit the Corps to meet with their migrant employees.

Behind it all is organized farm resistance to a pending legislative measure which would make it mandatory for Massachusetts farmers to pay migrants the prevailing minimum wage, make still further improvements in living conditions for the seasonal workers and guarantee state employees the right of access to the migrants. This would include Service Corpsmen. Under the terms of the bill, which is expected to be released soon for legislative action, local licensing boards would have to inspect living quarters provided for migrants and decide annually whether or not they can be considered suitable for human occupancy. Any farmer denied a "human occupancy" license.

The bill has drawn fire from the powerful Farm Bureau Assn. and other farm lobbies which have united affiliated farmers in a flight against the measure which has the support of the AFL-CIO. The measure, and resistance to it, have particular significance in Andover because former selectman Paul W. Cronin and a Community Commission of interested citizens from this area drafted and sponsored introduction of one of the three bills which were combined to produce the proposal now under consideration.

"Y" Willing To Discuss Branch Idea

Asked what the YMCA's reaction will be to a request for the opening of an Andover branch, if it receives one, Edward B. Bruce, general secretary for the Greater Lawrence "Y" said Wednesday, "we would discuss it in an affirmative way."

Bruce said the "Y" has thought about the possibility of such a move for some time. He added that a great many Andover men are active with the Lawrence YMCA and that 18 members of the 20-member board live in Andover.

Bruce said also that he has loaned Dick Cate from his staff to the Andover Youth center for a year and that this move has been made because the "Y" is aware of Andover's recreational needs.

mittee says it is being used every evening throughout the year except Fridays.

Equally busy, according to the report, are school gymnasiums. These town-owned facilities are being used at substantially full capacity during school hours and after school. They are not booked during the summer recess.

The fact that Phillips Academy does what it can to make its facilities available to townspeople, is also mentioned, but the committee reports that this use is necessarily limited to only a few.

Reporting on why it recommends a single center be constructed, rather than neighborhood centers, the committee said: "... there is a need for more swimming facilities . . . and especially a need for a year-round program in swimming. Additionally, it was determined that in order to be successful, any such facility or recreational center requires a professional staff and a professional program. Also, such center should have facilities which serve the community and the family as a unit. For example, such a facility would have - in addition to a swimming pool - a gymnasium which could be divided for multi-use and other space such as meeting rooms, a kitchen, game rooms, hand ball courts, auditorium etc."

Though it noted that neighborhood centers might be an "ultimate or ideal solution", the committee indicated that it felt it would be too expensive to build and staff such geographical centers now.

The committee considered, but rejected the idea of building a town-owned center for the same reasons. And it vetoed the possibility of a privately constructed - town operated facility, partially because such a building could be used by residents only and partially because it said it felt it would be "difficult for a private group to raise funds to be turned over to the town." "People," he said, "have more faith in an agency."

To explain its choice of a "Y" the committee pointed out that it would eliminate the need for tax dollars, provide a complete program and a professional staff. It said also that the YMCA is backed by an "outstanding record for administration efficiency and know-how," and it added that faith in an established organization would enhance the chances of receiving large gifts from foundations and individuals.
